

Lake McArthur

Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies

BULLETIN No. 2

THE steady flow of enquiries pouring into the Secretary's office indicates the interest in the Pow Wow for 1925, and the prospects are highly favourable for a memorable gathering. Although plans have not yet been completed, the probability is that this will take place beside Wapta Bungalow Camp early in August, after a three-day (forty-five mile) cross-country ride from Marble Canyon on the Banff-Windermere Road. The trail to be used calls at the Vermilion Paint Pots, climbs up Tumbling Creek to the Wolverine Plateau, where it connects with a new trail over the high Alps east of Helmit and Goodsir, and after dropping down to Goodsir Creek rises again alongside McArthur Creek and over McArthur Pass to Lake O'Hara, and so to Wapta. This route traverses some of the most spectacular scenery in the world, and will provide a trip which no one who participates can ever forget.

The proposal is to convey the riders by motor from Banff and Lake Louise early in the morning to Marble Canyon, where horses will be waiting; have lunch on the Wolverine Plateau, and make the first Camp on the heights facing Mount Helmet. The second night's Camp would be at Lake O'Hara and would coincide with the close of the Annual Camp of the Alpine Club of Canada, which will probably be located in the neighborhood of this Lake. It is an easy ride of eight miles from Lake O'Hara to Wapta, where the Pow Wow will be held. Wapta is so convenient by rail from Field, Banff and Lake Louise that the older members who do not wish to undertake the cross-country ride can still attend the Pow Wow. It is expected that a squadron will ride up from Lake Windermere, through the Kootenay Valley and over the Wolverine Pass, joining the Marble Canyon contingent on the Wolverine Plateau.

These prospective plans are being submitted to the Guides' Association at Banff, which meets at Banff in February, so that in our next Bulletin

to be issued in March we hope to be able to quote an inclusive rate for the Cross-Country Ride and Pow Wow. This will naturally be kept as low as possible, and arrangements made which will be as simple as is consistent with comfort in camp.

The paid-up membership to date (January 15th) totals 308, and the list of members will be found on pages 6 and 7. The elections for the Executive Committee and the Membership Committee are reported on page 6. Great interest is being taken in the Order at Jasper, and Fred Brewster expects to be able to form a local squadron there this Summer.

WHERE THE INDIANS GOT THEIR PAINT

Close to Marble Canyon and across the Vermilion River from the Banff-Windermere Road are the Vermilion Paint Pots with their curious natural deposits of coloured clay. The Stoney Indians call these Usna Waken Eagubi, meaning literally "Red Clay Spirit where it is taken," which would be translated as "Where the Red Clay Spirit is taken." The Indian Paintings on the rocks at Sinclair Canyon on the Banff-Windermere Road were made with clay taken from these Paint Pots. The following account of the Paint Pots was dictated by Daniel Wildman, Jr., a Stoney Indian of the Geological Survey, Ottawa, to Mr Marius Barbeau.

"Our people used to take their war paint at these springs, from the old generations. The people in the old days used to dream about the red clay; they were instructed in their dreams as to what to paint on themselves; maybe the rainbow on the forehead, maybe a large eagle on the body, maybe a bull's head. At times they were instructed to paint a buffalo on their tents, or a rainbow, or a quarter of the moon; or again, a large bird which they called Muh-Thunder. Or, at times, a great eagle called Wawgyartoza.

"Some famous Indians, two or three of them in the tribe, would take the clay and keep it for times of need, that is for the use of the wounded. They used to put it in the wound; they stretched the wound and filled it with red paint. This was one of its many uses. They also used to paint the spirit protector they had seen in their dreams, at the time when they were expecting to face hardships.

"Our people say that they see big animal spirits, the Thunder spirit in the springs. They also saw a spotted horse, and something like a man, or at times a tiger. They see these in their dreams and think that they are dwelling in the vermilion springs there. They put presents in the springs—rings or tobacco, most of the time, tobacco, brass buttons, or any little thing. They claim that as soon as they drop anything in the springs, it is gone, it disappears. In the old days they used to hear something there—a flute, some war songs played on the flute."

Youngest Member of the Order, John Bristol, aged 12
